Travel Health Assessment Form

*Only students participating in Northwestern University in Qatar Sponsored programs are required to complete this health assessment.

Being healthy is an important part of enjoying your time abroad. To help you think about steps you might need to maintain good health overseas, we require that you participate in this personal health assessment. International travel can be physically and emotionally challenging. The strategies you routinely employ to safeguard your health may be difficult abroad. It also might be hard to obtain familiar medications, utilize support networks, or locate healthcare practitioners. This assessment form asks you to think about strategies and resources to help you stay healthy abroad and, as necessary, find and consult with applicable support to aid in planning for your health and well-being. It is often possible to make special accommodations while abroad, but you are responsible for identifying your needs and seeking appropriate assistance. Therefore, please complete this form with care.

The information you elect to disclose will be treated confidentially by NU-Q employees and will not affect your program admission. Please note, however, that the prime responsibility for your well-being necessarily rests with you. Discussion of the contents of this form does not place any obligations on Northwestern University or its agents.

• Part A is for your personal use only.
• Part B is to determine whether any additional action is required.
• Part C is the Healthcare Provider Consultation (HPC) form and, if required, is to be completed by your healthcare provider and submitted at least 6 weeks prior to your planned departure. Completed forms (Part B or Part B and Part C depending on your responses) should be returned to the university official managing the administration of your trip.

TRAVEL HEALTH ASSESSMENT FORM: PART A
KEEP FOR YOUR REFERENCE

PRE-ASSESSMENT HEALTH CONSIDERATIONS

Vaccinations/Disease Prevention: Prior to completing this form, review vaccination recommendations and requirements as well as disease prevention strategies on the Immunization and Prophylactic Medications on Northwestern’s Global Safety and Security webpage. Certain programs may require additional pre-departure health measures, such as mandatory TB testing, and you will be notified of such measures at acceptance.

Health Coverage Abroad: NU-Q provides either SEIB health insurance policies, the Visiting Scholar Plan or other insurer plans on behalf of participants in NU-Q-sponsored programs, including Communication Exchange, Study Abroad, JR Residency, Service-Learning, Experiential Learning, Independent Study, and course-related travel (as defined in the student travel policy). Students are expected to review their insurance plans prior departure and make sure they are familiar with the benefits eligibility, providers network and usage and claim processes. Should you elect to travel on your own prior to, or at the end of, your university travel program, you will need to purchase additional coverage. There are dozens of companies that specialize in international medical insurance policies. You can research them on the web or you can purchase a policy similar to the NU-Q coverage from GIG.

Consult with your Current Provider: If you have not disclosed your travel plans to you current, treating physician or therapist, then you should meet with your doctor first. Discuss any special steps you might need to take to manage your condition during travel or while abroad. Students seeing a therapist or counselor can review specific advice on Mental Health Abroad on Northwestern’s Global Safety and Security webpage. Pre-departure planning conversations at NU-Q can be had with academic advisors, trip advisors, CHW, and ANU-Q. Students with chronic conditions are required to meet with their healthcare provider to discuss medical management planning and complete Part C of this form (Healthcare Provider Consultation form).

Medications (Prescription or Over-the-Counter): If you will require routine or prescription medication during your trip, review guidance for Traveling with Medication.

Accessibility: NU-Q students with disabilities can successfully travel abroad whether it be to participate in a study abroad program, conduct research, attend a conference or serve as a guest lecturer. The key to a trouble-free experience is planning. Understand, however, that attitudes, accessibility and accommodation for travelers with emotional, mental, learning or physical disabilities may vary in different locations. Successful travelers take time to think about how to manage these differences and seek as much information as possible before departing. Undergraduate travelers are strongly encouraged to discuss their travel plans with a university official coordinating or supporting the travel.

- Access Abroad is a comprehensive guide for students with disabilities who want to study abroad.
- Mobility International USA provides information on education and travel for all individuals with disabilities.

To the healthcare provider: Thank you for taking the time to meet with this student and complete their form. This student has disclosed to us that they have been treated in the last five years or is currently being treated, for a chronic physical or mental health condition(s). Living and/or studying in an unfamiliar environment can trigger physical and emotional stress and exacerbate current symptoms. You are asked to:

- Review any relevant information provided on the CDC Travelers’ Health web site for all countries on the student’s itinerary.
- Discuss the student’s medical situation with them in light of how it may affect their study abroad experience.
- Ask the student about the destination and demands of the program/experience.
- Advise the student regarding how potentially dramatic changes in climate, diet, living arrangements, social life or study demands may affect them abroad.
- Discuss possible accommodations the student should make or discuss with staff administering or overseeing their overseas program, including any continuing care needs.

- I have met with the student to discuss his/her medical condition as it relates to his/her intended study abroad program.

- I have encouraged the student to discuss his/her medical condition with one or more of the following: a representative from the NU-Q unit coordinating or supporting his/her program, a representative from AccessibleNU-Q, a health care professional, parents or other family members well in advance of the program’s departure date.
